

GLOBAL FOOD ROUND

Privacy & Data Protection Notice - Prototype

Collection remains paused until the legally responsible controller and collection-time notice are complete.

Status notice. Global Food Round is currently an informational prototype and verification-stage project. Public payments and donations are not accepted through the prototype. This document sets intended controls and launch conditions; it does not state that any supplier, distribution organization, fiscal sponsor, charitable status, tax treatment, license, insurance arrangement, public-fundraising permission, sanctions clearance, or other regulatory approval has been approved unless expressly identified as such.

1. Scope and present website status

The website volunteer and candidate forms are disabled. The previously published Idealist opportunity is now hidden on Idealist and is not presented as an active Global Food Round applicant-intake channel. That hidden status should be maintained during this pause. New formal volunteer or candidate intake should remain paused until the legally responsible controller is identified and the required collection-time notice is provided.

Slack and general contact channels may remain available only for community or general communication during this pause. They are not substitute application channels. Users should not be asked to submit volunteer applications, identity documents, beneficiary records, payment credentials, health information, or other unnecessary sensitive personal information through Slack or general email. Personal information actually received through any channel remains subject to applicable law.

2. Controller and current privacy responsibility

Until a separate legal entity or fiscal sponsor formally assumes the relevant role, personal information actually received for Global Food Round is handled by the current project operator and privacy contact, reachable at amirworlddevelop@gmail.com. The legally applicable controller status depends on the particular processing activity and applicable law.

Before personal information is collected through the website forms or another formal application channel, the collection-time notice must identify the legally responsible controller and contact details and provide the information required by applicable law. Depending on the law that applies, this may include the purposes of collection, whether provision is legally required or voluntary and the consequence of refusal, recipients or categories of recipients and their purposes, retention information, relevant cross-border processing information, and available rights.

The project name alone is not a substitute for the legal identity of the controller. A third-party platform's privacy terms do not by themselves discharge Global Food Round from obligations arising from its own receipt or subsequent processing of applicant or volunteer information.

3. Existing records and external services

Personal information may already exist in earlier email, Idealist, Slack or other project communications. The project should maintain a documented data map covering what information is held, where it is held, the purpose, access, service-provider role, transfers, retention and deletion. The legal role of each external service must be determined from the actual arrangement rather than assumed from branding or technical use.

Before formal intake reopens, the project should retain operational evidence showing that any external application intake intended to be paused has in fact been paused, removed or updated, rather than relying only on a policy statement.

4. Data minimization and minors

Do not request or retain beneficiary identity documents, medical information, full financial credentials, passwords, authentication secrets or other sensitive information unless there is a documented necessity and lawful basis with appropriate safeguards.

This notice does not authorize participation by minors. Before collecting information from or about a person under the applicable age of majority, the project must determine the age, consent, notice, safeguarding and recordkeeping requirements that apply to the person's location and activity.

5. Security and service providers

Apply access controls proportionate to risk, use appropriate account security and multi-factor authentication where reasonably available for privileged or sensitive accounts, and review processor/service-provider arrangements where required. Security obligations apply to information already held even while public website forms are paused.

6. Retention and preservation

Volunteer and candidate inquiries are retained while reasonably necessary for evaluation and project administration and are periodically reviewed for deletion or de-identification. Transaction evidence may be retained longer where reasonably required for accounting, legal, fraud-prevention, sanctions/compliance, audit or dispute-preservation purposes. Identifiable information should be deleted or de-identified when continued retention is no longer justified, subject to applicable law and legitimate preservation duties.

7. Public evidence and third-party material

Use the least identifying evidence reasonably capable of supporting a public claim. Redaction reduces privacy exposure but does not by itself create copyright, confidentiality, trademark or publication rights. Screenshots, emails, receipts, photographs, logos and similar material should be published only where a supportable permission, license or other applicable legal basis exists.

8. Rights, privacy contact and third-party review

Privacy questions and requests concerning information already held may be sent to amirworlddevelop@gmail.com. Access, correction, deletion or other requests are handled according to applicable law and may require proportionate identity verification. Third-party retailer and organization names are used for factual identification only; unless expressly stated, no endorsement, sponsorship, affiliation or commercial partnership is claimed. A person or organization alleging that documentary material infringes copyright, trademark, confidentiality, privacy or another right may contact the same address with the material and basis of the request. The project may restrict or remove material while the claim is assessed. Nothing in this notice limits rights that cannot lawfully be limited.

Volunteer / Idealist privacy addendum

Supplemental controls - volunteer / Idealist matters

Status notice. Global Food Round is currently an informational prototype and verification-stage project. Public payments and donations are not accepted through the prototype. Formal new volunteer/candidate intake is paused pending the privacy/controller controls stated below. This document does not state that Global Food Round is a registered nonprofit, charity, employer-exempt volunteer program, fiscal sponsor, insured volunteer program, or authorized fundraiser unless expressly identified as such.

Supplemental requirements

- Idealist ATS application answers, names, email addresses, phone numbers, Slack identifiers, volunteer correspondence, research reports and certificate records can be personal information. A platform privacy policy does not by itself discharge project obligations for the project's own receipt, use, storage, disclosure or deletion of that information.
- During the formal-intake pause, do not invite new applicants to route an application through ordinary email or Slack as a workaround. Existing volunteers may communicate for limited existing-task administration, but no unnecessary additional personal information should be solicited.
- Before adding a person to Slack, provide a clear notice that profile/display information and messages may be visible to other workspace participants and that Slack is a third-party service. Sensitive applicant, beneficiary, payment and complaint data should not be placed in shared channels.
- Maintain a data inventory for Idealist, email, Slack and local archives; restrict access; define retention; and remove unnecessary access/data on offboarding subject to legitimate preservation duties.
- No new minor intake is authorized during the current pause.
